MARX CARDS, INC.

STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

Summary Narrative:

Marx Cards was in the "group submission" business for the grading and authentication of sports cards and collectibles. The main grading and authentication company they worked with was Collector's Universe, Inc., dba PSA ("PSA"). Customers would pay Marx Cards ("Marx") a fee and also deliver their cards and/or memorabilia Marx Cards in order to have their items submitted for processing at PSA. Michael Minjares started the business to honor his brother Mark, who had recently passed away. Michael entered into a dealer agreement with PSA and acted as their agent on behalf of the corporation he set up, Marx Cards, Inc., a California corporation. The fee charged by Marx Cards included both the cost of submitting the item to PSA as well as a markup, which was Marx Cards source of revenue until they opened a storefront in Camarillo, CA in October, 2020.

The business model of Marx was essentially an Instagram contact business, where the customer was initially only known and identified by their address. A customer would send sports cards/memorabilia to Marx along with a fee for Marx services. Marx received a prepayment on about two thirds of the submissions from customers but not on all submissions. PSA was originally contracted to take payment upon receipt of a customers' cards from Marx, but changed instead to wait for payment until delivery of completed grading and authentication to charge Marx Cards. Michael Minjares relied on Dennis Porto to run the day-to-day business operations and banking.

The bookkeeping and record keeping for Marx was primarily handled by Dennis Porto, a friend of a friend, and a bookkeeper Annie Yang. The books and records are not particularly helpful, although the information for the filing was pulled together. The bookkeeper was missing in action since the beginning of November 2021. At best her statements appear to be creative due to numerous mis or false entries. It also appears that rather than being paid the agreed to amount of $700 per week, Ms. Yang was paying herself well above that fee. Mr. Porto also left the company in early November 2021.

In March 2021 PSA shut down new submissions at all but the most expensive (lowest volume) service levels and remained closed for six months in an unprecedented move. During this time, PSA continually expressed to Marx as well as to the public that the shutdown would end soon. Privately, Marx was encouraged by PSA employees to make sure and remain ready for reopening of all service levels. As a result, Marx retained its entire staff and the payroll that went along with it, upwards of $70k monthly. On the expectation of PSA reopening and enabling Marx to ramp up business again, they felt it prudent to keep all employees on.

Marx Cards ran out of money by mid-August 2021, so the majority owner Michael Minjares and his wife loaned their savings, approximately $150,000 to help make payroll. To put things in perspective, during the time PSA stopped taking all but the highest cost service level submissions, volumes dropped to little more than 100 transactions monthly, a stark contrast to the peak volume of over 30,000 submissions in March 2021 right before the shutdown.

By the time PSA started taking on the lower cost service levels again, which would have enabled Marx to ramp up at least to 1500 to 2000 submissions in a month, the company was in so much debt that all revenues were being absorbed by the daily and weekly payments to merchant banks which had made loans to the business. The customers were understandably upset and concerned for their cards and items.

In November and December, Marx tried to re-negotiate with PSA as well as with the merchant banks to work out a repayment plan that would be mutually beneficial. PSA shared that they were in no position to operate as a bank. Marx was told by the merchant bank/lender that restructuring was not an option but based upon their current levels of business outside of the PSA submissions (they were trying to develop new verticals in the trading card industry to generate revenues by way of selling cards and sealed packs & boxes of collectible cards to consumers for a profit), they would be qualified to receive additional loans. At first Marx declined this offer but as pressure mounted from PSA to make payments on orders that had recently been completed that had long been on hold during 2021, as a last resort Marx agreed to take on additional debt from the Merchant Banks. Meanwhile, Marx attempted to find investors who would be willing to take over the business, but ultimately nobody they reached out to was in a position to take on the full set of financial circumstances.

Meanwhile, PSA only finished about 20% of the cards Marx Cards submitted to them in 2021 (mostly the orders from January through March 2021). PSA has possession of the cards and memorabilia of the customers that were submitted by Marx Cards. Marx Cards was working with PSA prior to filing bankruptcy to try and return items to as many customers as possible.

It was during a covid shutdown at Marx Cards in early January 2022, that it was determined that the business could not be sustained. A combination of these factors put a stop to the business. It was also discovered that the bookkeeper was not segregating funds received from revenue generated and deposits, and although the bookkeeper was supposed to be paid approximately $40,000 a years, she had actually been paid approximately $99,000 for the year-when business was essentially shut down.

Marx Cards filed bankruptcy because of its inability to continue generating enough revenues to pay its obligations to the Merchant Banks. Before the filing Marx was working with PSA to return all the cards back to customers, whether they're completed or not and regardless of whether or not the customers had pre paid Marx Cards for the PSA grading and authentication service.

MARX CARDS, INC.

STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

Part 11; ¶21

Although Marx does not currently hold or have possession of the cards and memorabilia of its customers, Marx was the conduit of transmitting those items to PSA, the carding grading company. PSA was one of the companies used by Max, and did the greatest volume of business with PSA.

The attached listing includes the PSA order numbers, the account designation of the customer which is their Instagram address, the number of cards of the customer in that particular order number, the PSA status of such order and the name of the customer. A complete listing can also include an address of the owner and possible telephone or email address.

PSA has recognized that the owners are entitled to receive their property. Marx Cards has attempted to work with PSA to facilitate the return of property to their customers.

At no time did Marx claim any ownership interest in the customer cards. At all times Marx Cards was a conduit for transferring the owner's card to the third party grading company for processing.

STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL AFFAIRS
¶26 Books, Records and Financial Statements

Marx Cards business, banking and account was run by Dennis Porto, whose responsibilities included HS-Payroll/handled all finances/Invoicing/IT/Shop manager/live breaker (a reference to Opening up product for customers who pay through the online platform).

Annie Yang was the bookkeeper that Dennis Porto brought into the company. She worked from 9/2020 to 11/21, and then stopped returning calls. My understanding was that she was to be paid $700 per week, but upon reviewing the financial information she finally provided in early January 2022 it became apparent that she was paid substantially more than that amount, and some months as much as $12,000. Such payment were not authorized.

In review the Balance Sheet and other financial information that Ms. Yang provided just before this bankruptcy filing, there are items that are made up and false. For example, the automobiles listed as assets of the company, the Camaro and Toyota are personally owned by Kevin Minjares, and were not owned nor paid for by the company.

Additionally I, Michael Minjares personally loaned the company $150,998.00 in June and July of 2021. I have never been paid anything back on those two loans, and yet financial statements that Mr. Yang delivered make no mention of these loans. Further although a loan to KM-my brother Kevin Minjares, is listed, at no time did he loan money to the company.
